FOR TYPE 2 DIABETES

PROFESSOR TED WU
ENDOCRINOLOGIST (RPA)

Ted Wu is a Staff Specialist Endocrinologist at The Royal Prince Alfred (RPA) Hospital and a Visiting Medical Officer at Dubbo Base Hospital. As well as clinical diabetes, he has a longterm interest in both teaching and research. As the Director of the Health Professional Training and Development Unit within the Diabetes Centre at the RPA Hospital, Dr Wu formulates and delivers novel online-based educational programmes in clinical diabetes. These have included CD-ROM-based, internet, radio, teleconference, social media and interactive webinar initiatives. He has also been instrumental in establishing the RPA Diabetes Centre as the first International Diabetes Federation Centre of Education in Australia. In addition, Dr Wu is the Director of Physician Training at RPA Hospital and is responsible for overseeing the postgraduate education of junior medical officers across the RPA network of hospitals in the state of New South Wales.
