

Online Telehealth Course: Embracing technology in healthcare

Telehealth is recognised as a growing adjunct to health service delivery, especially in rural areas. It is expected that all health professionals, and students graduating from health courses, should be familiar with the opportunities and challenges of telehealth services

This FREE online course is designed to facilitate learning and understanding about telehealth services so that students and clinicians can begin to include it in their provision of healthcare and learn more about best practice in telehealth service delivery.

The Telehealth - Embracing technology in healthcare course aims to:

- Provide key concepts of telehealth and its role within healthcare
- Educate health students and professionals to deliver appropriate telehealth services
- Promote awareness and opportunities to incorporate telehealth in healthcare delivery

Course content, patient scenarios, resources, and guides have a focus on the current telehealth practice within the Three Rivers footprint. The modules have been designed to be easy to navigate and includes interactive opportunities for students and health professionals.

To access to the course please fill out the Telehealth course enquiry form at www.threerivers.csu.edu.au/telehealth

About us

Three Rivers University Department of Rural Health is part of Charles Sturt University and leads the consortium partnership in collaboration with The University of Notre Dame, University of New South Wales and Western Sydney University.

We work together with educators, healthcare providers and the local community to support rural health students and clinicians.

Who we support

We offer support to students studying towards a health profession in the following disciplines: Nursing, Midwifery, Dentistry, Oral Health, Physiotherapy, Occupational Therapy, Podiatry, Speech Pathology, Pharmacy, Paramedicine, Medical Radiation Science, Mental Health (Indigenous), Psychology, Social Work, Exercise Physiology and Pathology.

We recognise the importance of Indigenous Australians working in health professions and are committed to creating a safe cultural learning environment for Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander students throughout their academic journey to becoming health professionals.

Our support services

We offer a range of services and support programs including:

- Student accommodation support in varied locations
- Three Rivers UDRH grants & scholarships
- Educational modules for students and clinicians
- Multi-discipline cross campus student rural health club
- Facilitation of culturally safe training programs
- Pathways of entry into health courses

Research focus

- Rural health workforce development and rural training strategies
- Innovative rural service delivery models to enable the provision of health services to meet community needs
- Health issues directly impacting on rural people, with a focus on benefiting communities through the delivery of better health services
- Improving the health and wellbeing of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people

Contact Us

@ThreeRiversUDRH

P: 02 6051 9177

E: ThreeRiversUDRH@csu.edu.au

W: threeivers.csu.edu.au